

Interviews with alumni – master students abroad

Please introduce yourself.

My name is Alema and I am from Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina

When did you graduate from the Faculty of Education?

I was an Erasmus+ student and I've studied at the Faculty of Education during the spring semester 2021.

What did you do after getting your bachelor's degree? Did you immediately enrol in master's studies?

Although I was a master's student, I got the chance to study several subjects from bachelor studies which were helpful for my writing my thesis.

Where do you study now? How did you get the chance to study abroad?

I am still working on my master's thesis and I am studying at the University of Sarajevo.

How did studying at the Faculty of Education help you get into the master's studies abroad?

Since I was already a master's student, it didn't provide any particular help in that sense. However, studying at the Faculty of Education in Jagodina significantly improved my knowledge in the specific area of interest, which is teaching EFL to students with SEN.

What are the ways in which you benefit in your present studies from the skills, knowledge and competences the Faculty of Education taught you?

Everything that I have learned during my stay at the Faculty of Education in Jagodina is invaluable. It is priceless because I got the right directions and guidance from professors. The topic of my interest was deeply explored during my stay at the Faculty.

Do you have any advice for students studying at the Faculty of Education in Jagodina?

All students should seek help if they need it. At the Faculty of Education in Jagodina, I've met one of the kindest and most helpful professors. They were always eager to assist me and help with everything. Besides that, they should explore scholarships and programs which are offered to study abroad. It is a priceless experience.

Do you have any advice for high school graduates wishing to study at the Faculty of Education?

Finding the right path is not always easy. For all students that are interested in teaching, the Faculty of Education in Jagodina is certainly the right call. The faculty offers everything one student needs, and hospitable staff and professors pose a huge advantage for all future students. I recommend with all my heart the Faculty of Education in Jagodina.
